

Fay's House

Lahania, Rhodes

Lahania village

The village of Lahania has kept a lot of the traditional charm with its white washed houses.

There are a number of restaurants within walking distance, such as Taverna Platanos serving classic Greek food under a large tree and Sole Guagaro run by Greece's Top Chef winner. If you prefer cooking at home, there is a small village supermarket for the basics - including their own baked bread.

Beaches are either a 45 minute walk through the valley or an 8 minute car drive away. Even during the high season, the beaches are usually empty.

For essentials, such as pharmacy, cash machine, shopping Gennadi is a 10 minute car drive away.

Getting here: from Rhodes town via the East coast takes approximately 1 hour 15 minutes by car. By bus it takes approximately 2 hours 30 minutes but the schedule is changed frequently.

The house

This traditional Greek house, originally owned by the village cobbler and built in the 19th century, is located inside the village of Lahania. It has been renovated and cared for over the years but remains an old house, with all the charm but also quirks that make it unique. It is a little rough around the edges.

The house features one large sala of approximately 60 square meters that is divided by the central arch into four separate alcoves for sleeping or sitting by the fireplace. Thanks to the thick stone walls it is wonderfully cool during the hot summer months.

The kitchen is simple but has everything required to enjoy the local produce and prepare meals (gas stove, small electric oven, fridge).

The large courtyard is a perfect place to either enjoy the sun or relax under the trees. An outdoor shower is ideal for cooling off.

The small bedroom is furnished with a chest of draws and a large double bed on the wooden panka, a small window lets in a fresh breeze.

The bathroom is simple but has everything needed including a washing machine.
